Iconoclasm Returns to Oxford. We were warned about statues. The Psalms were so concerned about them that they said almost exactly the same thing in both the 115th and 135th of those often savage poems: “As for the images of the heathen, they are but silver and gold, the works of men’s hands. They have mouths and speak not: eyes have they, but they see not.

The original theological basis for iconoclasm was fairly weak. Arguments relied mostly on the Old Testament prohibition (quoted above). But it was clear that this prohibition was not absolute since God also instructs how to make three dimensional representations of the Cherubim (heavenly spirits or angels) for the Ark of the Covenant, which is also quoted in the Old Testament, just a couple of ...
